

Montclair to install first public electric car charging stations in N.J.

Published: Tuesday, September 14, 2010, 1:41 PM Updated: Tuesday, September 14, 2010, 1:41 PM

The Star-Ledger Continuous News Desk

Jennifer Brown/The Star-Ledger

Lisa Westheimer loves her new Zenn car, a 100% electric car. She plugs it in after running all her local errands around Montclair and West Orange.

MONTCLAIR — Montclair will be the first of four municipalities in the state to charge up electric cars with charging stations, funded by a $25,000 grant from Walmart, according to a report by NorthJersey.com.

The stations will be located in a parking lot, and recharge battery-powered vehicles, said the report. Both private and municipal vehicles will be allowed to use the station.

More Montclair news:

© 2010 NJ.com. All rights reserved.